

Flip Mino
from £130

www.theflip.com

When we heard about the original Flip Video, we were sceptical. But the smooth operation, simple uploading process and everyday functionality soon won us over. The Mino promises the same effortless usability, but in a sleeker, sexier form, and with touch-sensitive buttons. It offers up to 60 minutes recording, a 1.5in screen and 2GB of internal memory. Video has never been simpler.

Kodak Zi6
£tba (due Oct 08)

www.kodak.com

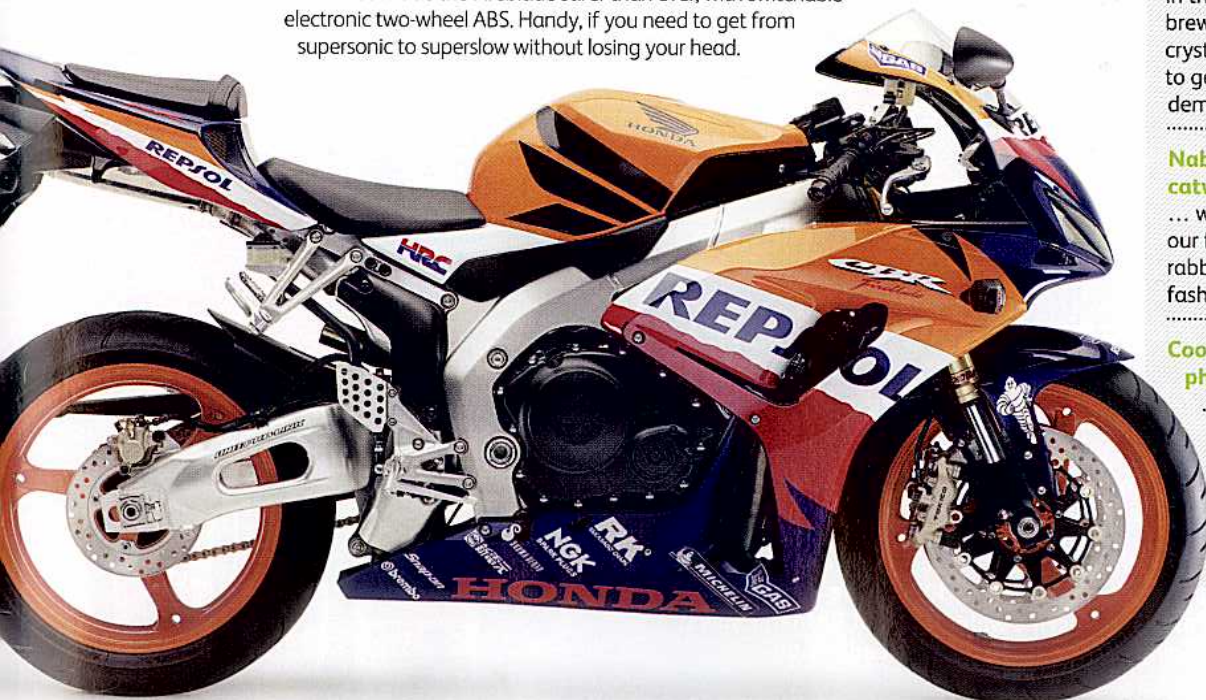

Kodak has taken the Flip's recipe for point-and-click simplicity and stirred in some high quality features. The Zi6 captures video at 720p and up to 60fps with a 16:9 aspect ratio, and its memory can be expanded up to a whopping 32GB with SD cards. Kodak's video virtuoso arrives packing a 2.4in LCD screen, and – like the Flip Mino – it also comes with basic video editing software.

THEM'S THE BRAKES
Honda CBR1000RR Fireblade £9200

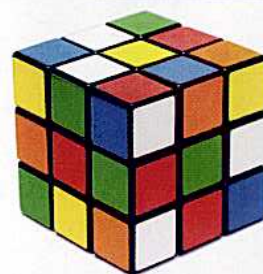

www.honda.co.uk

There's only one thing keeping us from straddling a superbike: the worryingly high possibility of ending up with considerably fewer limbs once we part company with the vehicle. That was until the 2009 Honda Fireblade rolled up to our doorstep.

Without compromising the aggressive-as-a-psychotic-shark looks or brain-mangling top speed, Honda has made the Fireblade safer than ever, with switchable electronic two-wheel ABS. Handy, if you need to get from supersonic to superslow without losing your head.

Stuff loves...

Having our minds boggled...

... by Rubik's Cube champ David Calvo, at the European Grand Prix in Valencia with our pals from Honda. Check out his site at www.darubik.com.

The sweet, sweet irony of...

... Stuff's deputy art editor Phill, borrowing Bond's actual Aston from next month's 007 feature and promptly breaking down. Bet Daniel Craig's never had to call the RAC.

Office japery with...

... SadTrombone.com. Soundtrack your colleague's mug-break misery with this most melancholy of soundbites.

Jumping off very high-up things...

... and getting told off for wearing out the front tyres on a C17 cargo plane by the Victorinox-sponsored RAF Falcons parachute display team.

Ice cold Becks Vier...

... on a late Tuesday night in the office. Nothing like a brewski so chilled it's got ice crystals forming in the top to get you through a demanding deadline.

Nabaztag's new catwalk looks...

... which have raised our favourite Wi-Fi rabbit to the status of fashion icon.

Cooliris, the Apple-esque photo add-on...

... for your browser. Turns web galleries into Cover Flow-style loveliness. www.cooliris.com.

